

Creeks & Ponds

Dragonflies lay their eggs in or near the pond.
When the eggs hatch, the young don't have wings yet and they live underwater.
When ready, they will climb onto land, spread their new wings and take their first flight.
They eat lots of mosquitoes and other insects.